Stuff it in!

He decided they'd watch a movie. There were advantages to watching one together. Like Desperate Living. They could sit on the same side of the room, facing the monitor. This presented opportunities for touching. Johnny wasn't disappointed. He carefully arranged everything in advance.

He usually arranged everything anyway. He didn't want DEANE to have to buy beer, when he was working. On $CAMH's dime, he'd say. DEANE would wrap the cans in an envelope for inter-office mail, and stash them in the fridge in the staff-room.

Didn't somebody say something about Mental Hell and ADDICTIONS?

They'd have been idiots not to know what was in the envelope, but they thought it was SODA for PIZZA NITE.

Unless DEANE exhausted their envelopes (they were always hard-up), he'd never be able to bring more than a few cans at once....

Pizza was even more awkward. So Johnny took care of that too, and it was cheap.

Setting up the movie was fun. It was setting DEANE up. He could almost feel him, as he moved his chair from the other end of the room and placed it beside DEANE's, as close as he dared. The pay-off!

DEANE wrinkled his nose. He smelled Johnny's "New Balance" © runners. Johnny's PRODUCT PLACEMENT. They smelled like a morgue.

It was HIM....

They really were off a corpse. He bought them from WORTHLESS WORLD. For 5 bucks. DEANE was impressed.

DEANE offered Johnny a little black and white TV. He wanted to know. How much was it worth? Thinking of the THING STORE, but since the THING STORE everything was WORTHLESS....

Romeo picked everything up off the field, after the auction. For FREE. Including his girl-friends....

When Johnny gave DEANE something, DEANE wanted to know how much JOHNNY was WORTH. He should have known he was worth even less....

Johnny said, keep it baby. Just give me a pair of your old runners. You don't have to wash them first.

He never gave him the runners though. Maybe by then he was on to Johnny's PARAPHILIA.
